

The Diagnosis

Select two six-sided die of different colors and one four-sided die.
Allow the patient to roll the six-sided die to explore his or her psyche.

As the patient rolls, ask questions to unravel the patient's psyche.

You roll one four-sided die to make sense of the twists and turns that plague the patient.

Begin with the question 'Tell me about the last place you remember?'

Listen to the patient.
Mark a tick toward madness or sanity depending on the complication die.
Balance means no tick mark.
