

INTO THE LAIR OF THE SLOBBERTOOOTH KOBOLDS

A LOW-LEVEL ADVENTURE BY LUKE E. DODD

Once a trading outpost of the Fardigger Dwarves, this subterranean site has been overtaken by the Slobbertooth Clan of Kobolds!

B. The Main Entrance is barred by a worn wooden door. If surreptitious, perhaps the adventures do not disturb the monsters in..."

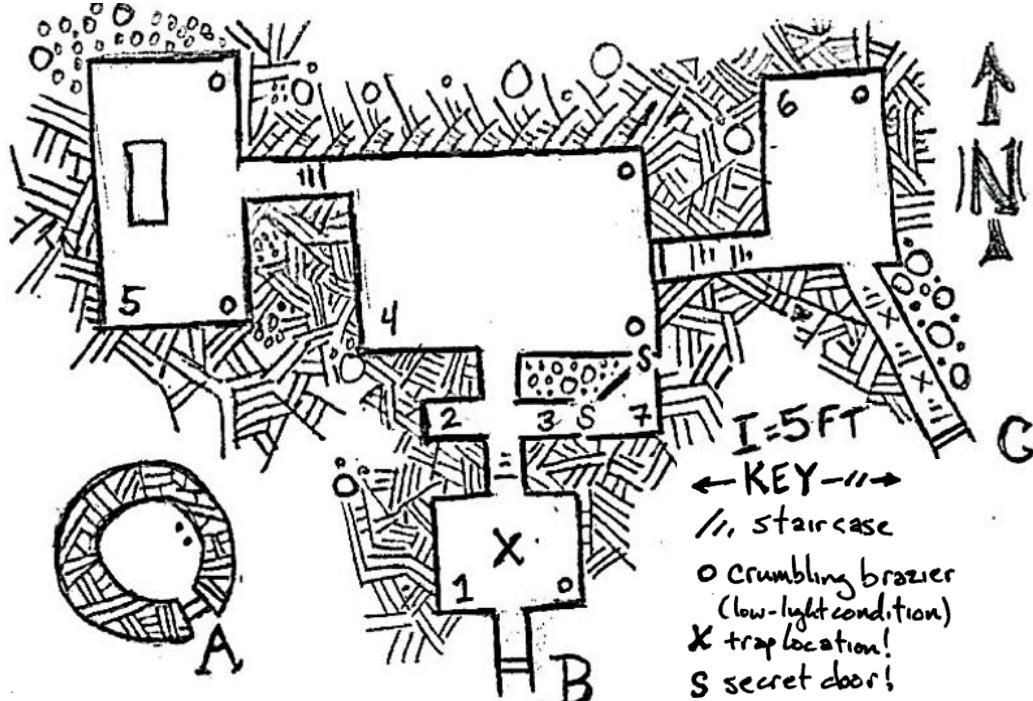

1. The Antechamber. This room holds 2D4 Kobolds that will try to push the adventurers into the pitfall trap in the center of the room!

If progressing deeper into the dungeon, the party might notice the spiderwebs overhead? If so, plucking the correct code might permit free passage beyond the zaraknid gnards ahead...

2&3. Each sideroom holds 2 giant spider! A secret door is hidden behind the nest in room 3, but searching might reveal a drafty clue?

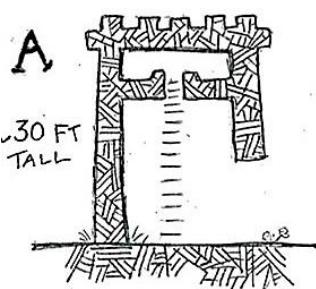

4. The Main Hall holds 304 Kobolds. Unless the party is sneaky, the kobolds have overturned 2 long tables.
Behind these barricades the kobolds will hurl Flaming oil!
Perhaps the party hears commands from western doorway?
Perhaps the flames from the southeast brazier belie
the secret door? Finally, beware the great weasel guarding the Kobolds!

5. The Chieftain's Quarters holds the chief & 2 guards. These Kobolds will seek to barter for their lives, perhaps for the chest of gold in the corner, or perhaps a kidnapped dandy that brought the party there to begin with?

A. The Watchtower holds 2D4 Kobold Archers.

1/2 are on perimeter, 1/2 are inside tower. Only 1 is on active watch, the rest are hidden. The perimeter is deteriorating, with risk of collapse. Upon siege, attackers will use flaming oil!

6. The Storeroom holds the Kobolds' spoils, as well as casks of oil that perhaps brought the adventurers here?

7. The Hidden Treasure Room is unknown to the Kobolds!
It holds unexpected wealth, including weapons... Perhaps 2 Hammer of Thunder or Axe of Cleaving?!

C. The Other Entrance is direct, leading down stairs.
The tripwire trap near the entrance will trigger bells
in Room 4 (leading to barricading of Room 6).
The trap of tanglefoot glue near Room 6 will slow or impede the party!!!
